SUMMER CAPITAL LOCATED • LOVELY SPOT IN PHILIPPINES

Ardmoreite Special.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—For three hundred years a search has been made in the Philippines for a summer capital. Finally it has been found in Baguio, in the province of Benguet. The town which is of about 5,500 population, is situated at an altitude of 5,000 feet above the level of the sea, in the northwestern portion of the mountain system of Northern Luzon. The country surrounding it is studded with fragrant pines and swept by breezes. It has a comparatively low average annual temperature with once in a while a touch of frost. As a retreat from the torrid plains on which most of the principal cities of the Philippines are located it is almost ideal.

The one difficulty that has been encountered is that it is almost inaccessible on account of the bad roads. Of course, it is remote from Manila and can be reached only by following steep, dangerous and obscure trails. In a sense, the latter difficulty has been remedied by the authorities of the Philippine government, who have constructed fairly good roads, easily passable by carriages and automobiles. The Philippine government is now making their headquarters there during the heated term. Some of the Philippine commissioners are located there and practically transact all of their business in Baguio. Commissioner Forbes has erected a substantial residence of stone at Baguio and he and his family spend much of their time there. All of the comforts of home are provided at Baguio, where golf links and tennis courts have been established and excellent arrangements have been made for communication with the outside world.

cottages. A railroad, now in course of construction, will land passengers from Manila within easy reach of Baguio.

How much this means to Americans who are in the Philippines scarcely can be imagined. In the early months of American occupation of the islands, the soldiers and the civilians, because of the heat in the tropics, their strength and vitality were sapped and it was found necessary to send many of the soldiers and civilians back to the United States to recuperate. In many cases of convalescents, the patients were sent to Japan, as it was deemed inadvisable to send them to America. Scores of invalids either became wholly incapacitated or died as a result of living in the torrid regions of the archipelago.

It is expected that the improvements at Baguio will afford great relief from the strain of living in the torrid regions of the islands and will save many a life that otherwise would be sacrificed.

Within a year or two, Baguio will be the location of the summer capital of the Philippine government. Even now, many of the officials of the government are making their headquarters there during the heated term. Some of the Philippine commissioners are located there and practically transact all of their business in Baguio. Commissioner Forbes has erected a substantial residence of stone at Baguio and he and his family spend much of their time there. All of the comforts of home are provided at Baguio, where golf links and tennis courts have been established and excellent arrangements have been made for communication with the outside world.

GOULDS NEW HOME

PLAIN, SIMPLE UNOSTENTATIOUS
HOUSE NOT A MANSION COST MILLION DOLLARS.

Ardmoreite Special.

New York, July 2.—At a cost of more than a million dollars George J. Gould, railroad magnate and son of the late Jay Gould, is going to build a new home on the corner of Fifth avenue and Sixty-Seventh street. Despite its cost the building is to be a plain "house," not a mansion, or a palace, or a chateau. The design is exceedingly simple and without ostentation.

The house will have a frontage of 44 feet on the avenue and 115 feet on the street, not occupying the entire plot of 59 by 125 feet. Thus three sides will be left open, with a southern exposure for the principal rooms. Seven stories, altogether, are provided in the plans—four full floors, a basement, a sub-basement and an attic.

Mr. Gould's new home will be as fireproof as a tall steel office building. With an exterior of stone, it is specified that all the partitions shall be made of hollow terra cotta blocks. Twenty thousand square feet of unburnable material will be used. The floors, too, will be fire proof, so that if a blaze starts it will be confined to one room. Fireproof private residences for the rich as well as for persons of moderate means are becoming more and more common in and about New York. Because of the high prices of lumber and the inexpensiveness of terra cotta the use of the latter is good economy.

The feature of the ground floor of his house will be a grand stair hall of white marble with ornaments of bronze. On the same level are the dining room and the library. On the next floor are a salon, a ballroom, and a foyer hall 50 feet long, 25 feet wide and 30 feet high. On the third are the suite of Mr. and Mrs. Gould and four guests' rooms. Seven bedrooms, a private dining room, kitchen and pantry, principally for the children and their guests, take up the fourth, and above that is the attic with ten servants' rooms, housekeeper's room, linen and sewing rooms, and clothes pressing room.

The dining room on the first floor is to be finished with white statuary and Chippendale marbles. The ballroom and the salon above will be decorated in the style of Louis the Sixteenth in white and gray.

OMAHA CASE DECIDED

INVOLVING RIGHT OF OMAHAS TO ALLOTMENTS IN OSAGE—AGAINST INDIANS.

Tulsa, I. T., July 1.—The noted Omaha case, involving the right of the Omahas to allotments in the Osage nation, has been decided adversely to the contestants by the allotting commission, and the case is now up to the secretary of the interior for final disposition.

The Omaha band numbers forty-four and comprises many prominent people in the Osage reservation and in Kansas. The Omahas, with the Kiowas, ruled out of allotments by the commission a week ago, makes a total of fifty-nine recommended by the commission to be dropped from the rolls. According to the estimate placed upon the average Osage estate, $1,770,000 will be saved to the tribe in consequence.

However, it is believed the secretary of the interior will restore to the lists the majority of the names dropped on the final rolls for allotment.

Former Secretary of the Interior Noble was the attorney for the Osage nation in the Omaha contest case.

JAPAN IS THOROUGHLY AROUSED AMERICA'S ACTION IS UNBEARABLE

By Associated Press.

Tokio, Japan, July 2.—The newspaper owned by Kato, Viscount Hayaashi's predecessor in office, foreign officer and trusted lieutenant of Marquis Ito, in a leading editorial today speaking of "Developments in anti-Japanese sentiment in America," says "The action of San Francisco authorities is unbearable, neither Washington or Tokio governments can remain inactive in view of the latest action of the San Francisco authorities against the Japanese. The time has come when the traditional friendship between both nations shall be demonstrated on some concrete form."

The newspapers here, which have special correspondents of American nationality in San Francisco, have ceased to receive news from them. No explanation is offered for the discontinuance of the news dispatches, but the impression here is that pressure is brought to bear upon correspondents in San Francisco not to serve the Japanese papers. A fear is expressed that the danger point will soon be reached.

Although war is not dreamed of the mutual feelings of good will and friendship will be seriously alienated if prompt measures are not taken to allay the general indignation here against the latest discrimination in San Francisco, which, according to the Japanese contention, is a flagrant violation of treaty rights.

TAFT UNABLE TO COME

CANNOT HELP REPUBLICANS IN JULY—NOW ENDEAVOR TO SECURE CANNON.

Washington, July 1.—Secretary Taft today said that he telegraphed the republican leaders in Oklahoma that he would not be able to go to that Territory until some time during the month of August, as he expects to spend the coming month of July on his vacation at Murray Bay, on the St. Lawrence River. The secretary regrets very much that he will not be able to get to Oklahoma to make his speech before the republican state convention, which it is understood is to be held early in the coming month. Mr. Taft hopes to leave Washington next Wednesday.

Oklahoma City, Ok., July 1.—Having failed to secure Secretary Taft for an address at the republican state convention at Tulsa July 12, a conference of prominent republican leaders was held here at headquarters this afternoon and arrangements will be made to secure Speaker Joe Cannon of Illinois instead of Mr. Taft. Chairman Hamon said tonight that opinions were expressed here today against a state ticket at the Tulsa convention, and an effort will be made to defeat any plan toward placing a ticket in the field.

INDIAN OUTBREAK FEARED

TROUBLE THREATENED IN ARIZONA AND TROOPS AT FORT APACHE IN READINESS.

El Paso, Texas, July 1.—An outbreak of Indians at Fort McDowell, Ariz., is threatened as a result of the killing of an Apache Indian, Austin Navajo, on Saturday last by W. H. Gill, a sub-agent at McDowell. Troops stationed at Fort Apache have been ordered held in readiness to proceed to Fort McDowell.

Gill, who claims to have shot the Indian in self-defense, was warned by Indian friends that it is not safe for him to remain on the reservation. He called upon Sheriff Hayden at Phoenix for protection and Hayden, with five deputies has gone to the reservation.

Washington, July 1.—A telegram was today received from Superintendent Goodman of the McDowell agency, Arizona, by the Indian bureau confirming the report of trouble at that agency. He says the lives of whites, friendly Indians and of the Indian police are in danger, but that the sheriff of Maricopa county, with seven others, is on the way to the scene of trouble and that the territorial militia will be available if needed. The aid of the National troops will not be asked unless the situation assumes a more serious aspect than at present, Gill is a preacher.

AMBASSADOR IN ILL HEALTH MAY BE COMPELLED TO RETIRE

Hamburg, Germany, July 2.—

Among the passengers on the Kronprinz William, which sailed today for New York, were Ambassador and Baroness Speck von Sternburg, who are returning to Washington after a visit to their home. Before leaving the ambassador declared with great positiveness that rumors that he is about to leave the diplomatic service are wholly without foundation. After a brief stay in Washington, the little baron and his wife will proceed to a secluded spot in New Hampshire to spend the summer.

The ill health of the ambassador is probably responsible for the persistent report of his retirement. For weeks he has worn a bandage about his face and it is declared that a cancerous growth, which has rooded the skill of the best physicians and surgeons of Germany, is responsible for his condition. Having its origin with a small red spot near the left temple, the dread disease has spread until it has affected the eye and ear, and one side of the face, is being gradually eaten up by the growth. It is feared that the malady may extend to the brain, which would result in madness, and almost certain death. In any event, the terrible disfigurement is a tremendous handicap in the social duties of the ambassador and it is believed will lead to his resignation, despite his present denials.

Baron von Sternburg makes light of his troubles and expresses hope of a speedy cure. He attributes it to the bite of a poisonous insect received while in China during the Boxer uprising. The German foreign office has also issued a statement to the effect that the health of the baron gives no occasion for serious concern.

If Baron von Sternburg should be compelled to retire, Germany would lose one of its ablest diplomats. Sent to Washington because of his close personal friendship with President Roosevelt, he has succeeded in cementing the ties of friendship between Germany and the great republic more closely than they have ever been before. The baron is closer to the president than any European representative and it is doubtful if Germany has another man who could fully fill the place he has occupied.

The ambassador has reached his present place by sheer merit, assisted, perhaps, by the lucky star that has seemed to guide his career in the past and that may yet save him for the future. His grandfather, Herr Speck von Sternburg, was a drover of cattle who, starting in life in an humble way, made a fortune in beef. He purchased an estate in Saxony, and was made a chevalier of honor. His son, father of the ambassador, became famous as an art connoisseur and was made a baron.

Small and weak of physique, the ambassador has yet been a favorite of fortune. He married a Kentucky belle, the lovely Miss Langham, the romance being based entirely upon mutual affection. It was one of those rare cases in which the possessor of a title was himself wealthy and the American girl he married comparatively poor, girls who have bought titles have since had cause to envy this Kentucky young woman who married for love, since her social position as wife of the American ambassador is one of high rank.

Sympathy for the baron in his present trouble is widespread in Germany the little ambassador being highly popular among all classes, and it is his career should be cut short by the disease now menacing him, sincere regret would be felt by millions of his countrymen.

JUDGE LOVING NOT GUILTY VERDICT IN ACCORD WITH LAW

Houston, Va., July 1.—After being out for thirty-five minutes the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of former Judge William G. Loving of Nelson, manager of the Virginia estate of Thomas F. Ryan, who was placed on trial here Monday for the murder of Theodore Estes, son of Sheriff M. K. Estes of Nelson county.

The jury retired at 4:45 and from that time until the verdict was rendered the defendant remained in the same seat he had occupied since the trial began, surrounded by the members of his immediate family with the exception of his daughter. At 5:25 a knock was heard from the jury room and Judge Barksdale ordered the sheriff to preserve order. The verdict was read by Foreman B. S. McGraw. Judge Barksdale thanked the jury and declared that he believed the verdict was in accordance with the general view. After the jury was discharged, anything to do with either crime. He also denied all knowledge of "Pettibone dope," or its use in his store and swore Orchard told him that but for Governor Steunenberg he would be a rich man, and he would kill him.

Georgia Masonic Conclave.
Ardmoreite Special.
Carrollton, Ga., July 2.—One of the most interesting convales of the Masonic order ever held in Georgia will begin here tomorrow and delegates are already arriving for the event. A feature of the convention will be the laying of the corner stone of the A. & M. college by the Masonic grand lodge of Georgia. Addresses will be made by Governor Hoke Smith, ex-Governor J. M. Terrell and other well known Georgians.

When a man finally does graduate from the school of experience, the flowers he receives are hauled to their destination by the undertaker.

Judge Loving, his wife and other relatives shook hands and thanked each juror for the verdict. Tears streamed from the eyes of both the defendant and his wife. Judge Loving was congratulated by many of his friends, though, in accordance with the warning of the court, there was no demonstration.

Foreman McGraw said that when the jury entered the room one of them did not exactly understand all of the instructions of the court, which were read to him. McGraw said that when he called for the vote he requested all who favored acquittal to hold up their right hands. Every hand promptly went up. When asked what the basis of the verdict was, he said: "Insanity, brought on by the story told by his daughter."

The forenoon was taken up by counsel for the defense and the closing speech by the prosecution was made this afternoon by the commonwealth attorney.
